

Oxford Conference, 20-22 September 2017

Welcome to the Oxford conference newsletter!

We are delighted to introduce you to our conference newsletter.

Over the past months and years UK & European Chapters have worked closely together to put plans into place for the conference. Building on previous successful joint conferences we decided to host our conference in the UK this time. Oxford is, of course, a natural choice with its impressive University colleges and historic buildings – a perfect setting for academic debate, reflection and socialising in the evenings with colleagues and friends. We are fortunate to have two wonderful venues for the conference in the heart of Oxford; the Examination Schools for the conference venue and Balliol College for the banquet dinner.

After much consideration we arrived at a conference theme of: 'Psychotherapy Practice & Research: Finding the Common Ground'. We appreciate that this subject, with its challenges known and emerging, is not new. We are influenced in the choice of theme by a desire for an inclusive approach that appeals in relevance to both clinicians and researchers. We envisage that the conference will enable us to come together and continue this important dialogue about research and its clinical applications. We are sure that Professor Bruce Wampold in his key-note address will get us off to a good start.

We hope that you will find lots of information in this newsletter that is helpful in preparing for the conference and planning your trip. More information is available on the conference website at: <http://www.sprconference.com/EU-UK-2017/>

We are here to help with any questions or if you need any further information. Please feel free to email us.

Thank you and we look forward to welcoming you to Oxford!

'Research on Psychotherapy Practice: Improving the Quality of Services'

We are delighted that Bruce Wampold Ph.D., ABPP will deliver a key-note address on the first morning of the conference. Professor Wampold is Director of the Research Institute at Modum Bad Psychiatric Center in Vikersund, Norway, Emeritus Professor of Counseling Psychology at the University of Wisconsin—Madison, and Chief Scientist, Theravue.com.

Conference Venue

The Examination Schools, 75-81 High Street, Oxford, OX1 4BG, UK

The Examinations Schools of the University of Oxford are located in a central location on High Street. There are entrances on both the High Street at the front and cobbled Merton Street to the rear. Built between 1876 and 1882 and designed by Sir Thomas Jackson, the building was created to house the University of Oxford's examinations. The building stands on a part of the site of the 'Angel Inn', which is reputed to have been the first Inn in England.

The Schools is one of the largest buildings owned by the University and are still used for University examinations today. Each year thousands of undergraduates sit their exams in this historical Grade II listed building, in traditional sub-fusc (black and white attire which is an Oxford tradition that is still rigidly enforced). Given the purpose of the building each room is equipped with an historic ornate clock - a reminder for moderators to keep to time!

The conference provides unique access to the Examination Schools which is not usually open to the public.

Conference Banquet Dinner Grand Hall, Balliol College, Broad Street, OX1 3BJ

The conference banquet will take place on the evening of Friday 22 September 2017 at Balliol College, Oxford. We invite you to come and dine with us and enjoy the splendour and tradition of one of Oxford's oldest colleges.

Balliol is one of the oldest Oxford colleges, founded in 1263. The main site is on historic Broad Street and the college houses an impressive array of buildings from its 19th-century façade to the College's oldest 15th century buildings. You can read more about the College's history by visiting:

www.balliol.ox.ac.uk

The conference banquet will begin with pre-dinner drinks in the Master's Lodgings or Garden Quad (weather dependent). The banquet dinner will take place in the beautiful 19th-century dining Hall. With a vaulted ceiling, portraits on the walls and candles by night, this traditional college setting will make a magnificent venue for our banquet - and is also sure to conjure up some of the magic of Harry Potter.....

Following the dinner join us at the Buttery for an after dinner bar, just steps from the dining Hall, in the grounds of the College.

The banquet will consist of pre-dinner drinks, a three course set dinner, wine and coffee. Most dietary requirements can be catered for if indicated in advance. Additional guests are welcome.

We are truly hoping for a very special evening. This is a unique opportunity to experience the atmosphere, fine food and wine of a Dinner in Hall at Oxford.

Please note that we recommend booking for the banquet dinner at the time of registration. Bookings can be made no later than Friday 8 September 2017. Banquet tickets will not be available at the conference.

Food and Drink

There are many High Street as well as quirkier independent cafes, restaurants, gastro pubs and pubs in Oxford.

Gees <http://www.gees-restaurant.co.uk/menus/a-la-carte-menu/> is an elegant Mediterranean bistro in an old conservatory.

Walton Street in Jericho has several nice cafes and restaurants including the Freud Cafe! It also has several historical pubs, including The Eagle & Child, where JRR Tolkien and CS Lewis held a literary discussion group, known as the Inklings.

<http://www.nicholsonspubs.co.uk/restaurants/southeast/theeagleandchildoxford>

You will also find Brasserie Blanc <http://www.brasserieblanc.com/>, the Loch Fyne Oyster Bar <http://www.lochfynefoodandgrill.co.uk/locations/oxford> and Branca <http://www.branca.co.uk/menu/>, just to mention a few.

If you want to drink for a good cause, you may want to visit The Lamb and Flag (at 12 St Giles) where the money spend is put towards a fund to help PhD students at St John's College! If you want to combine dinner with a walk, the Trout Inn, Godstow Rd, Oxford OX2 8PN might be an option, or if you want to combine it with a punt, the Cherwell Boathouse Dining (<http://www.cherwellboathouse.co.uk/>) might be the choice.

However, there are many other places you can discover. If you need some further inspiration, the Guardian published a list of budget restaurants a couple of years ago: <https://www.theguardian.com/travel/2014/nov/19/top-10-budget-restaurants-cafes-oxford> If you want to keep your banquet dress or suit for another night and venture out to try some Michelin Star dining experience, you could try Belmond Le Manoir aux Quat' Saisons on Church Road, Great Milton, Oxford, OX44 7PD (<https://www.belmond.com/le-manoir-aux-quat-saisons-oxfordshire/>)

Maybe what you need is a G&Ds natural, local home-made ice cream, G&Ds is Oxford's premier independent "Ice-cream café". (3 locations) <http://www.gdcafe.com/website/index.php>

Selected Sights in and around Oxford

Oxford

Oxford's many historical and beautiful university colleges, college gardens and chapels can be reached by foot. The Bodleian Library is well worth visiting and University Church of St Mary the Virgin is a beautiful church and offers fantastic views from the tower. If you are interested in an official tour, there is the Oxford Official University and City Walking Tour. More information can be found here: <http://www.experienceoxfordshire.org/product-category/tickets/tours/>.

The Pitt Rivers Museum <http://www.prm.ox.ac.uk/> and the Ashmolean Museum <http://www.ashmolean.org/> are both also well worth exploring. The Pitt Rivers Museum, often overlooked, has a very interesting ethnographic collection. The Ashmolean Museum has a fantastic restaurant with an excellent view over Oxford. If the weather holds up and if you fancy a walk after a long day at the conference, the Botanic Garden and the various University Parks are great places to unwind.

Oxford is obviously famous for providing locations for the Harry Potter films. For the Hogwarts dining room see <http://www.chch.ox.ac.uk/visiting/harry-potter> . For the Hogwarts library and infirmary see <http://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/about-us/filming/productions> . If you are bringing your family, or if you are just a Harry Potter fan, there's a Harry Potter and an Alice in Wonderland Tour (<http://www.experienceoxfordshire.org/product-category/tickets/tours/>) ... Although Weasleys' Wizard Wheezes cannot be found yet, Alice's shop , which features in the original story written by Lewis Carroll, still exists and offers many amazing treats (<http://aliceinwonderlandshop.com/>).

Of course, there is more to Oxford than its Harry Potter associations. Many other Film and TV productions have also taken place within its city walls. You may be interested in following Lyra's Oxford footsteps in the Golden Compass (<http://www.tourinaday.com/oxford/golden-compass-tour-oxford.pdf> ) or having a pint at one of the late Inspector Morse's watering holes (http://www.visitoxfordandoxfordshire.com/see-and-do/inspector\_morse\_and\_lewis.aspx ).

There seems to have been a peculiarly high incidence of children's classics created in Oxford. CS Lewis and JR Tolkien used to discuss their fantasy worlds in the Eagle and Child pub in St Giles (<http://www.nicholsonspubs.co.uk/theeagleandchildoxford/>) Lewis 'Alice in Wonderland' Carol was probably inspired by the Oxford Dodo in the Oxford University Museum of Natural History <http://www.museums.ox.ac.uk/natural-history> Pay it a visit if you want to see the original source of the 'Dodo Bird Verdict'!

If you have time to explore Oxford before or after the Conference ends, you might want to check this out: <http://www.tourinaday.com/oxford.html>
