The Network for Aboriginal Mental Health Research (NAMHR), established with funding from the CIHR Institute for Aboriginal Peoples Health, brings together students, researchers, community members, and mental health practitioners from across the country to build capacity for culturally safe and appropriate mental health and addictions research, and promote knowledge exchange to meet the needs of Indigenous communities.

The annual meeting provides opportunities to present new research and emerging priorities, develop collaborations and find mentors.

Papers are welcome on any topic related to Indigenous mental health research.

To submit an abstract (oral or poster presentation), please complete the registration and abstract form on the obverse.
Abstract submission deadline: July 15, 2019
