THE MCGILL ILLNESS NARRATIVE INTERVIEW

30TH ANNUAL SUMMER PROGRAM
IN SOCIAL AND CULTURAL PSYCHIATRY*WORKSHOP FACULTY | Professor Danielle Groleau

This workshop will provide an introduction to the McGill Illness Narrative Interview (MINI), a semi-structured protocol for eliciting information about illness experience that has been widely used in psychiatry, medicine and global health research. This workshop will present the theoretical basis of the MINI as a tool for qualitative health research. We will also cover the potential links with the concepts and values of Person-Centered Medicine and ways to adapt the MINI to study issues involving health behavior, bodily practices, illness, diseases, somatic and emotional symptoms. Participants will practice the MINI in one-on-one interviews and learn ways to code and analyze qualitative data produced with the MINI.

June 3-5, 2024, 12 hour WORKSHOP
