RATIONALE & AIMS: LEARNING FROM EXPERIENCE

The group relations conference is an educational event whose primary task is to provide opportunities to study the exercise of authority through interpersonal, intergroup, and institutional relations that develop within the conference itself as a temporary educational social system.

Effective leadership and the meaningful exercise of authority require more than intellectual and technical understanding. The Group Relations model in the Tavistock tradition provides a well-defined context within which to examine group-level forces and dynamics as they occur in the here-and-now. As people work in groups, families and other social systems, their participation takes on many different meanings—influencing thoughts, feelings and action. The confluence of individual meanings powerfully affects the identities, roles and authority we take on in groups, schools, organizations, institutions, communities and society.

Members of a group relations conference have the opportunity to directly experience the following:

- How people join and engage in group work, delegate and resist authority, and develop roles and reputations.
- How people contribute to and obstruct getting the group's work accomplished.
- How members of a group exercise authority, power and influence in meaningful and appropriate ways—both as leaders and as followers.
- Group collusion in the creation and enabling of maladaptive roles.
- Group support for recovery from these maladaptive roles.

In applying the learning from group relations conferences, having two or more people from the same organization attend the conference together is often useful.

CONFERENCE STAFF ROLES

- Act collectively as management.
- Take responsibility and authority to provide the boundary conditions to engage in the primary task of the conference.
- Play specific directorial, managerial and consultant roles.
- Offer interpretations and working hypotheses about what is happening in the here-and-now events.
- Contribute in whatever ways they believe will advance the work.

STRUCTURE & METHOD

This Conference is designed for individuals who wish to study the exercise of authority in groups and understand more about their own reactions to exercising and encountering authority.

The Conference is organized as a sequence of group and inter-group interactions.

Conference events include experiences in the following:

- ◆ Small Group - examines the life of a nine-member group as it unfolds. A consultant assists the group with the task.
- ◆ Large Group - consists of all Conference members with a team of consultants and meets to study its own behavior in the here-and-now in a situation in which face-to-face interaction is problematic or impossible.
- ◆ Institutional Event - members form their own groups to interact with other member groups and with staff. The primary task of the IE is to study authority, leadership, and overt/covert processes as groups evolve and interact in the here-and-now.
- ◆ Review /Application Group - consists of five to seven members with one or more consultants; provides opportunities for members to further reflect on their experiences and roles in the different Conference events and relate them to their work roles in community and institutional settings.
- ◆ Mutual Support Meetings - members and staff elect to attend open Workaholics Anonymous and/or Codependents Anonymous meetings. This provides an opportunity to compare and contrast the dynamics of a mutual support group with a small or large study group.

Please note: The conference is designed to provide an integrated experience. Learning occurs not only during individual conference events but also from their sequence and relationship to one another; therefore, membership entails a commitment to attend all events.
